HIV vaccine trials under way

SOUTH AFRICA is playing a leading role in HIV vaccine research.

Amukelani Chauke

As the world observes World AIDS Day on 1 December, South Africa will reflect on the great strides made in reducing the spread and impact of the epidemic.

In line with this, South Africa has started ground-breaking HIV vaccine trials to fight the disease.

Speaking in Parliament recently, Deputy President Cyril Ramaphosa said the HIV vaccine trials are a major boost to the fight against AIDS.

"This vaccine trial is regarded by many as the most scientific study in the world on HIV."

"But what is significant about it, is that it is led by South African scientists in almost all aspects of this research," he said.

The Deputy President said the research and the trial of the HIV vaccine will enrol 4 500 HIV-negative South Africans between the ages of 18 and 35 in 18 sites across the country.

He said the research will be done under the strictest ethical standards for scientific research over a period of 20 months.

Half of the participants will receive five doses of the vaccine, while the remaining 2 250 will receive a placebo.

"The participants will be followed up for three years to ensure the efficacy of the vaccine."

"The estimated cost of the trial is around R135 million and it is being done in partnership with private sector players and the public sector," he said.

The first trial using a similar vaccine was completed in Thailand seven years ago and reduced HIV transmission by 39 percent.

"In our trial, scientists expect the vaccine to be at least 50 percent effective but hope that it will be much more than 50 percent."

"The leading role that South Africa is playing in vaccine research is the result of ongoing investment in HIV vaccine development over many years," he said.

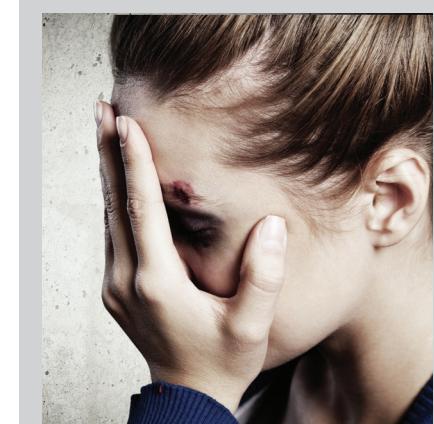

How the programme will be funded

The Deputy President said in 1999, a programme called the South African AIDS Vaccine Initiative was Spend wisely this festive season

THE FESTIVE SEASON is a time when many feel tempted to spend all their money.

As the festive season approaches consumers need to be smarter with how they spend their money and think about the deals that they get into.

The Credit Ombud, Nicky Lala Mohan says that many households rely on credit to cover their day-to-day expenses, which suggests that they are not living accord-

Tips to spend wisely:

- Avoid new debt
- Have a festive budget
- Save for next year's school requirements: fees, stationery, uniforms?
- Eat at home
- Compare prices
- Be creative with gifts
- Avoid end of season sales.

ing to their means.

"Overspending during this time of year is often an emotional response. Consumers feel that they have worked hard all year and deserve to spoil themselves and family members," said Lala Mohan.

However, consumers need to be warned that it is irresponsible and dangerous to spend too much on credit just because it seems like everybody else is doing so in the shopping malls.

"What consumers should realise is that come the end of January, you have to pay back the loans as well as school fees etc. If you cannot afford the repayments and once you fall behind, it can be very costly in terms of interests.

"This is usually the first step to a debt spiral. If it's not in your budget, don't borrow to get it," warned Lala-Mohan. ▀
